MOTHERHOOD

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

WINE OF CARDUI

143 Market Street,
Memphis, Tenn., April 14, 1901.
In February, 1901, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Thedford's Black-Draught. I had been married fifteen years and had never given birth to a child until I took Wine of Cardui. Now I am mother of a fine baby girl which was born March 31, 1901. The baby weighs fourteen pounds and I feel as well as any person could feel. Now my home is happy and I never will be without Wine of Cardui in my house again. Mrs. J. W. C. SMITH.

PUNCH'S EXAMPLE

By Arthur T. Quiller-Couch

The first class smoking carriage was the emptiest in the whole train, and even this was hot to suffocation, because my only companion denied me more than an inch of open window. His chest, he explained curtly, was "susceptible."

At the other end of the compartment my fellow passenger had pulled down all the blinds and hidden his face behind The Western Morning News. He was a red faced, choleric little man of about sixty, with a salient stomach, a prodigious nose, to which he carried snuff about once in two minutes, and a marked deformity of the shoulders. For comfort and also perhaps to hide this hump he rested his back in the angle by the window. He wore a black alpaca coat, a high stock, white waistcoat and trousers of shepherd's plaid. On no definite grounds I guessed him to be a lawyer and unmarried.

Just before entering the station at Lostwithiel our train passed between the white gates of a level crossing. A moment before I had caught sight of the "George" drooping from the church spire, and at the crossing I saw it was regatta day in the little town. The road was full of people and lined with sweet standings, and by the near end of the bridge a Punch and Judy show was just closing a performance. The orchestra had unloosed his drum and fallen to mopping the back of his neck with the red handkerchief that had previously bound the pan pipes to his chin. A crowd hung around, and among it I noted several men and women in black, hideous blots in the pervading sunshine.

The station platform was thronged as we drew up, and it was clear at once that all the carriages in the train would be besieged without regard to class. By some chance, however, we were disregarded, and escape seemed likely till the very last moment. The guard's whistle [illegible] lips when I heard [illegible] feminine [illegible] eight came tearing out of the booking office. Every one of them was dressed in complete black. They were, in fact, the people I had seen staring at the Punch and Judy show.

A moment later the door of our compartment opened and we were invaded. They tumbled in over my legs, panting, laughing, exclaiming, calling to each other to hurry—an old man, two youths, four middle aged women and a little girl about four years old. My choleric fellow passenger leaped up, choking with wrath, and shouted to the guard. But the door was slammed on his indignation, and we moved off. He sat back, purple above his stock, rescued his Malacca walking stick from under the coattails of a subsiding youth, stuck it upright between his knees and glared around at the intruders. They were still possessed with excitement over their narrow escape and unconscious of offense. One of the women dropped into the corner seat and took the little girl on her lap. The child's dusty boots rubbed against the old gentleman's trousers. He shifted his position, grunted and took snuff furiously.

"That was nibby jibby," the old man of the party observed, while his eye wandered around for a seat.

"I thought I should ha' died," said a robust woman with a wart on her cheek and a yard of crape hanging from her bonnet. "Can't 'ee find nowhere to sit, uncle?"

"Reckon I must shift 'pon your lap, Susannah." This was said with a chuckle, and the woman tittered. "What newfangled game be this o' the Great Western's? Arms to the seats, I declare! We'll have to sit intimate, my dears."

"'Tis first class," another woman announced in an awed whisper. "I saw it 'pon the door. You don't think they'll fine us."

"'Tall comes of our stoppin' to glare at that Punch an' Judy," the old fellow went on after I had shown them how to turn back the arm rests and they were settled in something like comfort. "But I never could refrain from that antic, though I feels condemned, too, in a way, an' poor Thomas laid in earth no later than this mornin'. But in the midst of life we are in death."

"I don't remember a more successful buryin'," said the woman with the wart.

"That was part luck, you see, it bein' regatta day an' the fun o' the fair not properly begun. I saw a lot at the cemetery I didn't know by face, an' I reckon they was mostly excursionists that caught sight of a funeral an' followed it to fill up the time."

"Well, it all added."

"Oh, aye; Thomas was beautifully interred."

The heat in the carriage by this time was hardly more overpowering than the smell of crape, broadcloth and camphor. The youth who had wedged himself next to me carried a large packet of "fairing," which he had bought at one of the sweet stalls. He began to insert it into his side pocket, and in his struggles he drove an elbow sharply into my ribs. I shifted my position a little.

"Tom's wife would ha' felt it a source o' pride had she lived."

But I ceased to listen, for in moving I had happened to glance at the farther end of the carriage, and there my attention was arrested by a curious little piece of pantomime. The little girl—a dark eyed, intelligent child, whose pallor was emphasized by the crape which smothered her—was looking very closely at the old gentleman with the hump, staring at him hard, in fact. He, on the other hand, was leaning forward, with both hands on the knob of his Malacca, his eyes bent on the floor and his mouth squared to the surliest expression. He seemed quite unconscious of her scrutiny and was tapping one foot impatiently on the floor.

After a minute I was surprised to see her lean forward and touch him gently on the knee.

He took no notice beyond shuffling about a little and uttering a slight growl. The woman who held her put out an arm and drew back the child's hand reprovingly. The child paid no heed to this, but continued to stare. Then in another two minutes she again bent forward and tapped the old gentleman's knee. This time she fetched a louder growl from him and an irascible glare. Not in the least daunted, she took hold of his cane and shook it to and fro in her small hand.

"I wish to heavens, madam, you would keep your child to yourself!"

"For shame, Annie!" whispered the poor woman, cowed by his look.

But again Annie paid no heed. Indeed she pushed the Malacca toward the old gentleman, saying:

"Please, sir, will 'ee warm Mr. Barrabel wi' this?"

He moved uneasily and looked harshly at her without answering. "For shame, Annie!" the woman murmured a second time. But I saw her lean back, and a tear started and rolled down her cheek.

"If you please, sir," repeated Annie, "will 'ee warm Mr. Barrabel wi' this?"

The old gentleman stared at her. In his eyes you could read the question, "What in the devil's name does the child mean?" The robust woman read it there and answered him huskily: "Poor mite! She's buried her father this mornin', an' Mr. Barrable is the coffin maker an' nailed 'im down."

"Now," said Annie, this time eagerly, "will 'ee warm him same as the big doll did just now?"

Luckily the old gentleman did not understand this last allusion. He had not seen the group around the Punch and Judy show, nor if he had is it likely he would have guessed the train of thought in the child's mind. But to me as I looked at my fellow passenger's nose and the deformity of his shoulders and remembered how Punch treats the undertaker it was plain enough. I glanced at the child's companions. There was nothing in their faces to show that they took the allusion. And the next minute I was glad to think that I alone knew what had prompted Annie's speech.

For as I looked, with a beautiful change on his face, the old gentleman had taken the child on his knee and was talking to her as I dare say he had never talked before.

"Are you her mother?" he asked, looking up suddenly and addressing the woman opposite.

"Her mother's been dead these two year. I'm her aunt, an' I'm takin' her home to rear 'long wi' my own childer."

He was bending over Annie and had resumed his chat. It was all nonsense—something about the silver knob of his Malacca—but it took hold of the child's fancy and comforted her. At the next station I had to alight, for it was the end of my journey. But, looking back into the carriage as I shut the door, I saw Annie bending forward over the walking stick and following the pattern of its silver work with her small finger. Her face was turned from the old gentleman's, and behind her little black hat his eyes were glistening.

A Simple Marriage Ceremony.

In Hindustan the marriage ceremony is short and simple, and no courting precedes it. The arrangements are made by the friends or relatives of the principals. When the bride and groom are brought together, in many cases they see each other for the first time. The bride playfully skips toward him and seats herself beside him. The priest ties a corner of the bride's veil to the groom's shawl, and they are man and wife.

A Resourceful Peddler.

"A few years ago I thought I would become a suburbanite," said a New Yorker, "and with this object in view I purchased a place in a Long Island village. There was but one serious drawback to the place, and that was the influx of peddlers. An army of hawkers infested the place morning, afternoon and night. The bell was jingling all the time, and the dog was driven to the verge of rabies.

"One morning I lost my temper. It was the sixth peddler to call before breakfast that upset my usually serene temperament, and I told the persistent individual if he did not leave instantly I would whistle for the dog.

"'All right, sir,' he retorted, 'but first won't you allow me to sell you a good whistle? I have here'—

"But that was the last straw, and I resolved then and there to live in town the rest of my days."—New York Times.

Strange Diseases.

Lombardy is the one place where pellagra is always prevalent, that mysterious modern ailment due to eating damaged maize, which since 1833, when it was first noticed, is computed to have been responsible for the death of more than 500,000 peasants. Mandalay ringworm, again, is known and dreaded throughout Burma, but even the most ignorant Burmese is aware that it cannot be contracted outside the ancient capital. Similarly "rock" fever is confined to Gibraltar, although it is probable that the ailment known as Maltese fever, which can be contracted only in Malta and there only in the spring and autumn, is closely allied to it. Aleppo evil, too, is unknown in any of the other cities of Asia Minor, just as the Delhi boil is confined to Delhi.—Chambers' Journal.

Olives as a Diet.

Olives are permitted, even advised, for dyspepsia and nervous patients by many physicians, the caution going with the suggestion that good olives be used. A poor olive is most unwholesome eating. Bargains in olives should be hesitated over, as a low price sometimes indicates a doctoring of the article that is not healthful. When perfect, the olive is hard, with a fresh, agreeable smell, yellow green in tint and when bitten into yields a crisp mouthful, not in the least mushy or spongy. Beware of soft, dark olives, with a certain pungent smell difficult to describe, but easy to detect.

What Alligators Eat.

More than once curious things have been found in the stomach of a shark, but never has such an extraordinary collection been found as was discovered recently in the stomach of an alligator.

This alligator was killed in the Sudan and was more than twelve feet in length. In its stomach were discovered eighty-five stones, several birds' claws, two human finger nails and three hoofs of a donkey, to one of which a piece of rope was attached.

WORN TO A SHADOW.

When there is a falling off in flesh in woman or man there is "something wrong." And that something wrong is generally a loss of nutrition due to disease of the stomach and the other organs of digestion and nutrition. Sometimes this loss of flesh is accompanied by variable appetite, but in many cases the appetite does not fail and there may be a constant desire to eat. Languor, nervousness, irritability, sleeplessness, are symptoms often associated with this loss of nutrition and falling off in flesh.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food so that lost flesh is regained and the physical health re-established.

"I had suffered from indigestion and only those who have suffered from it know what it really is," writes Mrs. M. J. Fagan, of 1613 East Genesee St., Syracuse, N. Y. "I had had severe attacks of headache and dizziness, with cold hands and feet; everything I ate distressed me, bowels were constipated and I was growing very thin and nervous. I cannot half express the bad feelings I had when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took nine bottles of the 'Discovery' and have taken several bottles of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I commenced feeling better with the first bottle and kept on improving. Now I am so greatly improved in health my friends often speak of it. I most heartily recommend these medicines to all suffering as I was."

ELECTRICIAN RUTLEDGE AGAIN TURNED DOWN.

Electrician Rutledge, lessee of the Sonoma Electric Light Plant, on Wednesday evening last sent in the following communication to the Board of City Trustees in regard to a street lighting service for Sonoma:

To the Honorable Board of City Trustees of Sonoma —GENTLEMEN: Inasmuch as there is no possibility of the California Central Gas and Electric Company entering our town within a year at least, I would be pleased to furnish lights for the streets of Sonoma for one year as follows:

July	$40
August	40
September	40
October	60
November	60
December	60
January	60
February	60
March	40
April	40
May	40
June	40

Or a flat rate of $50 per month.

Should your honorable board desire to enter into a yearly contract with me on this basis, I will agree to relinquish my contract at any time should the big power company enter the town and give you a better rate than the above, which I cannot do with profit.

W. T. RUTLEDGE,
Lessee Sonoma Electric Light Plant

The communication was read by Clerk Small and Mr. Rutledge and his street lighting proposition were again turned down by the votes of Trustees Breitenbach, Pinelli and Poppe.

The town will continue to remain in darkness, although an electric lighting system was inaugurated in this town four years ago by eight of Sonoma's business men. Nearly $7000 was invested by these men because they took a pride in their town and wished to see it properly lighted. Now, in defiance of the wishes of eighty of the principal tax payers of Sonoma who last month petitioned the City Trustees to pay $50 per month for street lights, the city has unjustly been deprived of its street lighting service by three Trustees, who are representing only themselves in this matter.

"Francesca da Rimini."

Two hundred people on the stage, twenty of the best actors and actresses in the country, including the great tragedian, Frederick Warde, and a scenic production that will cost $25,000, are some of the features promised in the magnificent presentation of "Francesca da Rimini," with which the Warde season at the California Theatre, San Francisco, opened last week.

In things theatrical this is apparently an age of revivals. There seems to be a growing tendency to go back to the old plays, both on the part of the actor folk and the people who patronize the theatres. Of the many revivals during the past season the immortal love story of Francesca da Rimini has undoubtedly met with the greatest success. Its revival has been almost simultaneous in several different parts of the world, and in New York and the principal eastern cities there has been a perfect furore over the famous play.

Unprecedented interest has been aroused in San Francisco over the forthcoming Warde production of "Francesca da Rimini," and from present indications it looks as though the play would enjoy an exceptionally prosperous run. Frederick Warde is looked upon as the King of all legitimate actors now on the stage. He is the only one who can be properly called the successor to Edwin Booth. Warde has ever been loyal in his unswerving support of Shakesperian and classical dramas and now that these plays are again regaining their once popularity, Warde will certainly occupy a very prominent position in the eyes of the theatre-going world.

The company which is supporting Frederick Warde at the California is undoubtedly the finest legitimate organization that has ever crossed the continent.

Woman's Club Ball Last Night.

Beneath flags, evergreens, ferns and flowers the national day was celebrated in Sonoma by a grand ball at Union Hall by the Woman's Club. There were many couples upon the floor and a great many spectators, all of whom came with the holiday spirit to enjoy the music, dancing and jollity in general. A San Francisco orchestra played for the occasion and the floor was well managed by Dr. G. D. Rich and Henry Bates. Many of the light colored costumes worn by the ladies were both pretty and dainty and added much to the beauty of the assemblage. The supper served by Mr. Wilde of the Union Hotel was excellent. The tables were ornamented with flowers and fruits and when the guests had been seated all this made up a scene of much pleasure. Dancing was resumed after supper and continued for several hours. This, the fourth dance given by the Woman's Club of Sonoma Valley, was, as it has always been, a social and financial success.

Death of Mr. Emparan.

Mr. Emparan, after leaving Sonoma a number of years ago, had been in the employ of the Mexican Government.

A communication was received from W. T. Rutledge, lessee of the Sonoma Electric Light plant, offering to light the streets of Sonoma for one year at an average rate of $50 per month. [Mr. Rutledge's offer will be found under another heading in another column of this paper.]

Trustee Hotz, who favors the lighting of the streets, thereupon made a motion that Trustee Breitenbach's resolution passed at a previous meeting be rescinded and that Mr. Rutledge's offer be accepted. The motion was seconded by Trustee Ciucci, who is also an advocate for a street lighting service, but the resolution was downed by Trustees Poppe, Breitenbach and Pinelli voting against it and—the lights went a glimmering.

The appointment of Louis Breitenbach as sexton of Mountain Cemetery was rescinded, his appointment at the June meeting being illegal.

The application of John D. Wagnon and Louis Breitenbach to be appointed to the position were read by the Clerk. The Trustees then proceeded to vote on the applications, with the following result:

For Wagnon—Trustees Hotz and Ciucci.

For Breitenbach—Trustees Pinelli and Breitenbach.

The vote being a tie John Wagnon, the present incumbent, will continue to hold the position.

The following communication was received from the California Central Gas and Electric Company:

SAN RAFAEL, June 16, 1902.

City Trustees of the City of Sonoma, Cal.
—GENTLEMEN: I have been asked by several of your citizens as to the probable time the California Gas and Electric Company will introduce light and power in Sonoma and vicinity. We are at present very busily engaged in the work already in hand and cannot say as to the time we will be able to let you know, but certainly not this year. Yours truly,

CAL. CENTRAL GAS AND ELECTRIC CO.,
M. C. OSBORN, Manager.

The contract for cleaning the ditches of the city was awarded to H. Pooler, his bid of $20 being the lowest.

Trustee Breitenbach then introduced the following resolution, which was defeated:

WHEREAS, As the State sanitary laws require the appointment of a Board of Health, to consist of five members, in each municipality, be it

Resolved, That the President of this Board of City Trustees appoint such Board, he to be one of the members thereof. The members of such Board to hold office during the pleasure of the President of the Board of City Trustees.

Resolution defeated by President Poppe refusing to vote. The vote was a tie: Ayes—Breitenbach and Pinelli; noes—Hotz and Ciucci.

President Poppe then proceeded to appoint a Board of Health independent of the above resolution, as follows: Dr. Carl Walliser, C. Aguillon, S. Schocken, G. H. H. Cornelius and Ranald McDonell.

Trustee Pinelli reported progress on the ditch on First street West.

The Cemetery Committee was instructed to advertise for bids for doing all work necessary in Mountain Cemetery.

The Board then adjourned.

PAULI-ROWELL.

An Artistic Wedding at Schellville.

One of the most beautiful and artistic weddings ever witnessed in Sonoma was that of pretty Miss Della Pauli, granddaughter of Mrs. A. B. Lubeck of Locust Grove, and Mr. Elmer T. Rowell, principal of the High School in Martinez.

The wedding guests were all relatives and very dear friends of the bride and groom, and all pronounced it as charming a wedding as has ever been seen, for it was held under the locust trees at the Grove. From the porch an arbor of various beautiful greens was arranged so that it reached to a large locust tree, under which there was artistically suspended a beautiful white wedding bell.

The bride was given away by her brother, Clayton Pauli, and Miss Ethel Pauli, the sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

The gown of the bride was of a beautiful soft organdie, made in a wonderful fashion, which was most becoming. Miss Ethel wore light blue and certainly made a most lovely bridesmaid. Both the bride and bridesmaid carried white roses.

After the wedding ceremony a most sumptuous breakfast was served, at which the beautiful bride and gallant young groom were congratulated and many appropriate toasts were spoken.

The bridal party surprising their friends, drove to El Verano, where they took the train, but a great surprise was waiting for them, as the train was held at Schellville while all their friends boarded it and rice and old shoes were scattered over them in a most plentiful manner.

DUST IN COAL MINES.

A Powerful Explosive and More Dangerous Than Firedamp.

For good and evil dust plays many parts in the world. It plays an important part in the production of fog and even of rain, it gives rise to the gorgeous colors of sunset, and it forms a congenial breeding ground for microbes, good and bad, and a handy means of distributing them.

There is abundant proof that combustible dust, such as that found in coal mines, is a powerful explosive, more dangerous even than the dreaded firedamp, since it is capable in some circumstances of exploding spontaneously. The reason is that the fine dust combines with the oxygen of the air—that is, it burns slowly, and in the process of combustion gives off heat, which raises the temperature of the dust. This increase of temperature, again, causes oxidation to proceed more rapidly, until finally the dust is hot enough to explode on the slightest provocation.

The explosion spreads to the dust floating in the air and accumulated in the mine till a destroying flame sweeps from one end of the workings to the other.

Many plans have been proposed of obviating this risk. One method which obtained great favor was to keep the atmosphere of the mine damp by sprinklers. It has, however, been found that this rather increases the danger since damp dust oxidizes much more readily than dry.

Modern science relies chiefly on keeping considerable stretches of the workings free from dust by thorough wetting, so as to limit any explosion which may occur and at the same time keeping the whole mine cool by thorough ventilation.

His Position.

"You have been with that firm a long time," said the old school friend.

"Yes," answered the man with the patient expression of countenance.

"What's your position?"

"I'm an employee."

"But what is your official title?"

"I haven't any official title. It's like this: When the proprietor wants something done, he tells the cashier, and the cashier tells the bookkeeper, and the bookkeeper tells the assistant bookkeeper, and the assistant bookkeeper tells the chief clerk, and the chief clerk tells me."

"And what then?"

"Well, I haven't anybody to tell, so I have to go and do it."—Washington Star.

The Scepter.

The scepter was the emblem of power. As the silver wand, so familiar in cathedrals, was once hollow, containing the "virge" or rod with which chastisement was inflicted upon the choristers and younger members of the foundation, so the royal scepter represented the right to inflict punishment. Hence the expression "to sway the scepter" implied the holding of regal dignity. The scepter with the dove possessed the additional signification of the Holy Ghost, as controlling the actions of the sovereign. The same idea was conveyed at Reims by the beautiful ceremony of letting loose a number of doves at the coronation of the French kings.—Good Words.

Unrecorded History.

Cleopatra languidly raised her drooping eyelids and asked the attendant:

"If a rattlesnake rattles, can you tell me would a gartersnake hold up your stockings?"

The slave, being unable to answer, hastened to the menagerie for a specimen to experiment with, but brought back the wrong kind by accident. Whereupon the reptile fastened its fangs on the fair queen's person, and the evening extras contained the news of her death.—New York Times.

Business and Laughter.

It took me some time to learn, but I did learn, that the supremely great managers, such as you have these days, never do any work themselves worth speaking about. Their point is to make others work while they think. I applied this lesson in after life, so that business with me has never been a care. My young partners did the work, and I did the laughing, and I commend to all the thought that there is very little success where there is little laughter.—Carnegie's "Empire of Business."

Looking For Light.

"Do not darken my doorway again," said the frail little woman with the child. No, gentle reader, she was not speaking to any brute of a persecutor—only informing the painter that she was tired of sable colors and preferred something light.—Philadelphia Record

CITY OFFICIAL PAPER.

He "Borrowed" the Bicycle

A young fellow about seventeen years of age, who gave his name as Floyd Glenn, and claimed to hail from Portland, Oregon, was arrested last Saturday on complaint of Julius Fochetti Jr., who charged him with stealing a bicycle. It appears that young Fochetti had left his wheel, a brand new Cleveland, standing in front of his father's blacksmith shop, and shortly after he missed it. The prisoner was seen to mount the wheel and head toward El Verano and thereupon a warrant was sworn out for his arrest but before the papers had been served upon him by Deputy Sheriff Ryan he returned the bike, explaining that he had only "borrowed" it for a short time. When he appeared before Judge Small he further explained that he had a "partner" who was looking for work in El Verano, while he was doing the same here. He had secured a job for both on a farm in the southern part of the valley and as he had no other means of conveying the good news to his "partner" he "borrowed" the bicycle, intending to return it to the owner, which he had done. Young Fochetti upon hearing the prisoner's story, relented and requested to be allowed to withdraw the complaint, as there was really no criminal intent on the young fellow's part. This Judge Small permitted him to do and after giving the prisoner a good lecture discharged him from custody.

Killed a Big Rattler.

Ferdinand Norrbom, on Saturday last, while riding over the Norrbom ranch, located near the headwaters of Agua Caliente creek, encountered a huge rattlesnake which lay directly in his path. The reptile, with a loud rattle, disputed Mr. Norrbom's right of way and coiled up for a spring at the intruder. The whirr of the rattles put the young man on his guard and the reptile was dispatched with a large stone. The rattler was a big fellow and sported ten rattles and a button.

SUMMONS CAME VERY SUDDENLY.

Frank Colange Expires at Vineyard Station.

Frank Colange, well-known in the French colony of San Francisco and who came to this valley for the benefit of his health about a year ago, died very suddenly at Vineyard Station last Tuesday morning.

Deceased had been a guest at the Bellevue Hotel, El Verano, for nearly a year. A couple of months ago he changed his abiding place to the Lawrence Villa in this place. Last Monday he again decided to change his abode and applied to the Roquie Villa at Vineyard Station for accommodations. The resort was full of guests, however, and he could not be accommodated. Colange then applied for a room at Forni's saloon near the depot and was given a room for the night.

On Tuesday morning while sitting on the porch of the saloon Colagne gave a gasp and died almost instantly.

The deceased was a member of several beneficial societies in San Francisco and his remains were shipped to that city morning for interment Wednesday

Willie Glynn was born in this place thirty years ago, and had spent most of his life here. He was a genial and good hearted young man and made friends where ever he went. Some years ago consumption fastened itself upon him and he apparently realized that his days were numbered.

The funeral took place from St. Francis' Church Wednesday morning. The remains were laid to rest in the Catholic Cemetery beside those of his father, an only sister and two brothers. Thos. R. Glynn of San Francisco is the only surviving member of the family. The mother of Mrs. Glynn's affliction, has the sincere sympathy of the entire community.

The six-day voting contest of White & Watkins' show, to determine the most popular child in Sonoma, resulted in little Peter Yeni Jr. winning the prize, a set of silver knives, forks and spoons. Over 2240 votes were cast for the little fellow, who is the very picture of his dad, the popular proprietor of the Victoria grocery and saloon.

Lathrop Dunn Married.

Blundering Attempt to Retire Old Board of Health by Appointing a New One.

City Trustees Breitenbach, Poppe and Pinelli, composing a majority of the Board of City Trustees, made another one of many blunders for which they are becoming noted at a regular meeting of the City Trustees held last Wednesday evening.

Without just cause or reason, except spite work on the part of Trustees Poppe and Breitenbach, who are manipulating Trustee Pinelli as a cat's-paw to pull their chestnuts out of the fire, the three appointed a new Board of Health to take the place of the present members, to-wit: Dr. A. M. Thomson, R. G. Shoults and L. H. Green.

The new appointees named by Julius Poppe, the President of the Board of City Trustees, and whom he sought to make his lick spittles, without as much as asking their leave, were Dr. Carl Walliser, C. Aguillon, S. Schocken, Ranald McDonell and G. H. H. Cornelius.

Now, should the above gentlemen qualify by taking the oath of office the old Board of Health would be forced out of office and the new appointees would assume their functions. But nothing of the sort will transpire, Trustees Poppe and Breitenbach to the contrary notwithstanding.

The new appointees must be represented by at least one reputable physician, and as Dr. Walliser has declined to serve, why—there you are. The old Board of Health will continue to do business at the old stand.

In an interview with Dr. Walliser, who has enjoyed a large and lucrative practice here, he stated that his appointment had came to him as a great surprise and that he had not been consulted in the matter at all. That he would remove to Oakland next month, where he has recently erected a fine residence and where a good practice awaits him. That while grateful for the compliment he could not under the circumstances think of accepting the appointment.

Several of the appointees have also stated to other parties that they would never consent to serve, as the present Board of Health is filling all the requirements of the office in a creditable manner.

Grass Fire.

A grass fire was started Saturday afternoon on the Daniel Laird premises on Second street East, occupied by Nick Ahern and family. Fortunately the wind was blowing from the west else nothing could have saved the dwelling, which had a very narrow escape.

A quantity of fencing was burned as was also a bridge spanning a small creek on the place. The fire company responded to the alarm of fire, but the boys were ordered back to the engine house by Chief Poppe. The fire was finally subdued by the neighbors, who smothered the flames with wet sacks after quite a piece of land had been burned over. The cause of the fire is unknown but it is supposed to have originated from a spark from a passing locomotive.

Prof. A. C. Olney Married.

A. C. Olney, ex Vice Principal of the Sonoma High School, and who resigned two years ago to accept the principalship of the Fresno High School, is now a Benedict. Mr. Olney was married Monday to Miss Cora Rowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan H. Rowell of Fresno and a sister of Elmer Rowell, a teacher at the Locust Grove school, Schellville. The young couple after their honeymoon will take up their residence in Fresno and will be "a home" to their friends after October 1st.

Weddel in San Francisco

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at 618 Larkin street, San Francisco, the home of Attorney G. W. Haight, on Tuesday evening, July 1st, at 8:30 o'clock. The contracting parties were Adolph Robin of San Francsco and Miss Lola Rickliff of Santa Rosa. The rooms were very prettly decorated in pink and white. Sweet peas were in abundance. The couple stood under a wedding bell of smilax and carnations, while the Rev. Mr. White of the West Side Christian Church tied the knot. The bride was gowned in white organdie over taffeta silk and wore a veil reaching to the bottom of her train. It was caught with a bunch of orange blossoms. The groom was formerly a popular young man of Sonoma. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served in the dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Robin will make their home in San Francisco.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease.

It originates in a scrofulous condition of the blood and depends on that condition.

It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the vocal organs, disturbs the stomach.

It is always radically and permanently cured by the blood-purifying, alterative and tonic action of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

This great medicine has wrought the most wonderful cures of all diseases depending on scrofula or the scrofulous habit.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best cathartic.

FLINGS AT THE SEA.

Old Sayings That Breathe a Strong Distrust of the Ocean.

"No man will be a sailor," said Dr. Johnson, "who has contrivance enough to get himself into jail." Dr. Johnson was, however, a landsman, while many of the following expressions are the opinions of seafaring people. "He who trusts himself on the sea is either a fool, or he is poor, or he wants to die." This Gallicism is no stronger than the following saying by the maritime Dutchmen: "Better on the heath with an old cart than at sea with a new ship." "Better walk poor than to sail rich," says the Spaniard, and in the same spirit his Italian neighbor responds, "Praise the sea, but stay on shore."

Another maritime nation, the Danish, gives us this strong opinion: "One penny is better on land than ten at sea." German woodsmen say, "The sea has no branches (to cling to), therefore it is better to stay on shore," and the French rustics agree with them—"Admire the sea as much as you will, but don't stir from the cowsheds."

The Arab fears the sea as much today as he did in the fifteenth century, when he thought the hand of Satan would arise from the "sea of darkness" to seize his frail bark. "It is better," says he, "to hear the belching of the camel than the prayers of the fish," and he further outlines the dangerous nature of the element when he says, "The sea has a tender stomach, but a head hard as wood."

A facetious work a century old has it thus: "The ship is a fool, for it moves continually. The sailor is a fool, for he changes his mind with every breeze. The water is a fool, for it is never still. The wind is a fool, for it blows without ceasing. Let us make an end at once of navigation."—United Service Magazine.

Large Sums For Old Junk.

A New Yorker who spent several days in Washington recently had his attention called to the sale of various collections of waste made by the government departments. "I was prepared to learn that the waste iron at the navy yard was sold," he said. "I knew that the waste paper from the departments could be used. But I didn't expect to hear that the scrap iron, bits of steel, brass and other minerals and the old canvas, cotton, leather and other substances which might be taken from wornout mail bags were sold also.

"Yet I was told at the postoffice department the other day that the amount of such waste in a year was enormous and that when the junk was sold last year it netted the department about $6,000. At first I could hardly believe the story, but I learned subsequently that 16,000 bags are worn out in a year and then understood where all the iron, canvas and leather were obtained.—Washington Post.

The Woodpecker's Home.

The woodpecker's home is very like the kingfisher's, but it is dug in rotten wood instead of being bored in a bank of earth. From the great ivory billed species down to the little downy fellow of our orchards the woodpeckers build their nests, or, rather, excavate them, on the same general plan. The hole at first goes straight into the wood, then turns downward, widening as it descends, until it gives room for the home. If you will go into any bit of unshorn woodland during early spring and will keep your eyes open, you will see a bright red head thrust out of a round window in some decaying trunk or bough, and the woodpecker will sing out, "Peer, peer!" which always seems to mean that his or her home is a most comfortable and enjoyable place.

"The Uncle of His Nephew."

The potency of football in giving prominence not only to the player, but to all his relatives was amusingly illustrated in the case of William Lloyd Garrison. At an evening reception Mr. Garrison was introduced to a noted athlete.

"I am pleased to know you, Mr. Garrison," said the athlete. "I presume you are a relative of the famous Harvard quarterback, Billy Garrison."

"Great heavens!" exclaimed Mr. Garrison in mock indignation. "All my life I have been known as the son of my father! Must I in my old age be known as the uncle of my nephew?"—New York Tribune.

IT WAS TIME TO LEAVE.

The Reason Bill Moved From One County to Another.

It was on a Missouri highway that a native stopped a man driving a load of household goods and asked:

"Say, Bill, where ye gittin' to?"

"Gittin' out o' this county, Abe," was the reply.

"But ye jest moved a few days ago, Bill."

"I know it, Abe," said the man on the wagon, "but that's long enough fur me."

"Waal, Bill, I'm sorry ye don't like our county. Mebbe ye wasn't treated neighborly enough?"

"Yes, I reckon I was. I hadn't got settled when a family come in and borrowed a jug of 'lasses and three chairs, and another family come in and borrowed terbacker and cups and saucers and then"—

"But that was jest to be neighborly, Bill," interrupted the other.

"I kinder thought so, Abe," he continued, "but, as I was sayin', then 'long comes another family and borrows my mattress, and another got the loan of my stove, and"—

"Jest wanted to make ye feel at home, Bill."

"I kalkerlated so, Abe, and I wasn't sayin' a word until Jim Brown come over yesterday and borrowed my gun and my huntin' dog."

"Yes, Jim's a neighborly old soul."

"Mebbe he is, Abe, and I let him have 'em; but, dawggone my hide, when he come back an hour later and said he had accidenshually killed the dog and wanted to borrow another I kalkerlated it was and to move. Git up thar, Sam'l. L. let's be a-gittin' out of this county afore some one else comes along and wants to borrow my whisky. Gee up!"—Philadelphia North American.

How to Avoid Trouble.

Now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over, and if procured now may save you a trip to town in the night or in your busiest season. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful medicine in use for bowel complaints, both for children and adults. No family can afford to be without it. For sale by Duhring.

Read It in His Newspaper.

George Schaub, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by F. Duhring.

MEDIÆVAL PREACHING.

Sermons Delivered in the Vernacular and Preserved in Latin.

The Puritans were not, as has been supposed, the inventors of extemporary preaching. The practice was distinctly mediæval and was stopped about the time of Elizabeth. As to the language, we meet with difficulties to determine which were in Latin and which in the countless dialects of the day, which so continually fluctuated, both as to the speaking and the writing, that it is a matter of wonder how the missionaries could in many cases have done the work they are credited with, unless we presuppose on the part of the masses a much greater knowledge of Latin than is commonly supposed. This, however, would seem to be probable—namely, that the "sermones ad populum" of the eighth, ninth and tenth centuries were generally delivered in the vernacular and extemporary and afterward translated into Latin either by the orator himself or some hearer.

What will strike the average non-Catholic as so very strange, in view of the current opinion to the opposite, is the almost marvelous grasp of Scripture of the typical mediæval preacher, whether we consider the number of quotations, their variety or the interpretation of the same. Neale estimates as ten to one the ratio between a mediæval sermon and that of a modern divine as regards the number of texts customarily cited. The contrast is still greater when we turn to the manner of citation, the mediæval preacher citing naturally, easily, logically as one saturated with Scripture from its being his own daily spiritual food, the modern ill at ease, tacking on a quotation here and there, often uselessly, altogether with the air of a man who feels rather shaky when treating an unfamiliar subject. The one evidently read the Scriptures, the other only concordance and index.—Catholic World.

How He Found Out.

Schoolteachers sometimes ask their pupils queer questions, if one may believe a story told by the youngest member of the Withington family.

His mother one morning discovered a shortage in her supplies of pies, baked the day before, and her suspicions fell upon Johnny.

"Johnny," she said, "do you know what became of that cherry pie that was on the second shelf in the pantry?"

"Yes, ma'am," he replied. "I ate it. But I had to."

"You had to!" exclaimed his astonished mother. "What do you mean, child?"

"The teacher asked yesterday if any of us could tell how many stones there are in a cherry pie, and I couldn't find out without eating the whole pie, could I? There's just 142."

She Purchased Then.

She wasn't exactly old, but the discriminating observer could see that she hadn't seen the inside of a schoolroom for at least ten years. The shopman threw down piece after piece of fleecy white material before her critical eyes, but none of them seemed to claim her unreserved admiration. She was taking a great deal of his time, and the silk counter was crowded, so he decided to play his trump card.

Holding up a length of crepe de chine so that it fell in a perfect cataract of shimmering folds, he remarked reflectively as if to himself alone, "The best thing for graduating purposes we have had in the store this year." The effect was instantaneous, and in another minute the tactful salesman was measuring off a full pattern for his well pleased patron.

Bought Up Offending Organs.

A story is related of the composer Verdi that has to do with organs. One time a friend while visiting him was shown through the composer's home. When the door was opened into one room, it was found to be filled with barrel organs of all sizes and patterns.

"What on earth are you doing with all these?" asked the astonished friend.

"Those are a few that have annoyed me with 'La Miserere,'" answered the great artist, "and they will never do so again."

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 20, 1902.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours.
